OUTLOOK Asian equity markets ended mostly higher on Tuesday as higher oil prices and optimism about the upcoming corporate earnings season helped investors brush aside trade and Brexit-related concerns. Japanese shares ended higher, with overnight gains on Wall Street and a weaker yen boosting sentiments. Further, Chinese shares ended higher after official data showed consumer prices in China grew an annual 1.9 percent in June, matching expectations and up from 1.8 percent in May. While, the producer prices index jumped an annual 4.7 percent versus expectations for 4.5 percent and up from 4.1 percent a month earlier. Meanwhile, ahead of Q1 earnings, rating agency Crisil in its latest report has said that India Inc's revenue in the first quarter of the current financial year is expected to grow at a 12-quarter high of 12.8%. It added that this would be the third consecutive quarter of double digit growth, but the jump in performance in the earlier two quarters could have been attributed to a low base on account of demonetisation and Goods and Service Tax (GST) implementation slump. The report is based on an analysis of 350 companies excluding those in the banking, finance, insurance and oil sectors, which comprise over 50% of the National Stock Exchange (NSE). European markets were trading in green; Germany's DAX increased 12.85 points or 0.10% to 12,556.74, UK's FTSE 100 was up by 20.62 points or 0.38% to 5,418.73 and France's CAC added 13.48 points or 0.18% to 7,701.47.

TRADING STRATEGY: As on (02/07/2018)

BEAR CALL SPREAD:

A bear call spread is a type of vertical spread. It contains two calls with the same expiration but different strikes. The strike price of the short call is below the strike of the long call, which means this strategy will always generate a net cash inflow (net credit) at the outset.

The short call's main purpose is to generate income, whereas the long call simply helps limit the upside risk.

The profitability of the strategy depends on how much of the initial premium revenue is retained before the strategy is closed out or expires. As the strategy's name suggests, it does best if the stock stays below the lower strike price for the duration of the options.

This strategy breaks even at expiration if the stock price is above the lower strike by the amount of the initial credit received. In that case the long call would expire worthless, and the short call's intrinsic value would equal the net credit.

Breakeven = short call strike + net credit received

Maximum loss = Difference between strike prices of calls (i.e. strike price of long call less strike price of short call) - Net Premium or Credit Received + Commissions paid

Maximum Gain = Net Premium or Credit Received - Commissions paid

EXECUTION: SELL NIFTY 10650 call around 150-155 and BUY NIFTY 10750 call around 80. Maximum profit around 70. SI as per traders risk appetite
